

Notice

Senior Product Development Technologist

New position

Andrew Fuller has taken over as Senior Product Development Technologist for Muntons Ingredients. In his new role Andrew will be leading the Stowmarket Technical Sales Support team and will be driving new product development and innovation, whilst also taking over responsibility for the smooth running of their purpose built, 'Centre for Excellence.'

Andrew has been with Muntons Ingredients for over four years, having spent the previous 16 years working within the food industry.

"My aim is for the team to continue to deliver high levels of service to customers and channel partners, completing development projects in a timely fashion" said Andrew. He continued "There are so many exciting and innovative ideas that we want to progress, that will bring fresh new products to market and we have to manage these through careful prioritisation."

His twenty years food industry experience will prove invaluable as he tackles the challenges that his new role brings.

thank you for your attention