John Scatchard has been appointed to the position of Technical Manager Milling at Muntons Malted Ingredients. In his new position he will be working closely with the New Product Development and the Sales teams and will be involved in the development and realisation of new products.

John has been involved in the milling industry since 1981, having held various production and technical positions both in the UK and overseas in companies as diverse as ADM, Continental Milling – in the West Indies and the AF Group in Hong Kong.

Returning to Muntons in this new role, having previously been the MMI production manager milling, John is looking forward to this new challenge, which will embrace production, engineering and technical sales support.

“I am really looking forward to working with the excellent team at Muntons and feeling that the future for Muntons Malted Ingredients is very exciting” said John.
